Strictly Come Dancing – the cd

By: Fred

After listening to the music of the bad Dutch 5CD box of “Dancing with the Stars”, I was curious if the chosen music on the original “Strictly Come Dancing” cd was better. Well, it is better, but there is a lot of music on the cd that is not suitable for ballroom dancing. If this was a normal cd, I would be positive about it, because there are some very nice danceable songs included. On the cd cover you can read “At the strict tempos for ballroom dancing”, so I may expect more. “Leave Right Now” and “Hero” are much too slow for dancing the Rumba. “Mr Bojangles” is too fast for a Slow waltz and too slow for a Viennese waltz. On “Bamboleo” and “Bolero” they want you to dance a Paso Doble. How did they come up with that. On television they also have to dance to that strange music. The music on the cd is played by the Laurie Holloway orchestra.

Born Romantic

By: Fred

Some time ago I bought de DVD “Born Romantic” at “Music House” for about 10 euro. The cover can look different depending on the country where you buy it.

The story is about three men pursuing three women across London. The unsuccessful musician Fergus (Morrissey) is trying to find his ex-girlfriend which he dumped eight years ago, the elderly charmer Frankie (Ferguson) wants the beautiful but arrogant Eleanor (Williams) and the robber Eddie (Mistry) is trying to find one of his victims, cemetary worker Jocelyn (McCormack). The three women often dance at the Salsa club. By learning the Salsa the three men try to get the women. The reasonable cab driver learns more and more about the three men and the three women, because he often brings them to the Salsa club. Therefore he can help their luck a bit.

I like the movie, but it is a pity that they use bad language. You can see some nice Salsa dancing, but because of the crowded dance floor it is hard to recognize the steps.
